LA FOLLETTE'S MOVE GEORGE C. GORHAM PART OF A BIG PLAN

Delay of Naval Appropriation Bill Means Insurgent Victory.

MEANS LONG WAR ON SENATE LEADERS

Republicans Take Part in Fighting the Rule of "Senate Family" Over All Legislation.

By J. C. WELLIVER.

The fight of the Senatorial insurgents against the present organization of the committees of the upper house has been formally and openly begun.

That is the significance of the speech of Senator La Follette, in which he demanded that the naval appropriation bill should not be rushed through the Senate without opportunity for real consideration. Under the iron hand of Senator Hale, it was proposed to drive the measure to its passage with about two hours of consideration.

La Follette asked that it go over two days, so that members might have time to read the bill and report on it. He pointed out that it carries a vast sum of money, $138,000,000, and that it has been in the Naval Committee fifteen days. He considered that if it took the committee fifteen days to handle it, the Senate overhit to have more than two nate ought to have more than two Senator Hale protested that the work had been carefully done in committee, and that the committee procedure was the only one that could be relied upon for handling details of legislation.

To this the Wisconsin man replied with his attack on the constitution of the Senate committees. He declared that Senators place themselves on a that Senators place themselves on a number of committees of the greatest importance, while leaving other Sena-tors with no assignments of significance,

One-Third Does Work. In this way, he said, it comes about that one-third of the Senate's membership really does, in committee rooms, unfair division of responsibility. He thought it would be well for some Senators to undertake lighter burdens, and for the others to get a chance at the real business of legislation.

It was the first gun, fired from the floor of the Senate, at the citadel from which the elder statesmen have so long ruled. Heretofore there has been muttering and intimation and marmuring than George Congdon Corbert.

formance was that the Senate remained in its seats to hear the light. There was no desertion of the floor, such as Republicans Aid La Follette.

Dana once styled Mr. Gorham the ablest editorial writer in America.

Mr. Gorham was born in Greenport, N. Y., in 1832, received his education in the public schools there, and when yet a young man emigrated to California. He arrived in California at the height of the gold fever, but became a small merchant instead of joining the throng seeking the yellow metal. In 1856 he was appointed clerk to Stephen J. Field, then alcalde of Marysville and later justice of the United States Supreme Court. Justice Field and Gorham became fast frænds. This warm friendship caused them to be known as "Damon and Pythlas."

Secretary of Senate.

Secretary of Senate.

As a reward for services, Mr. Gorham in 1868 was made secretary of the United States Senate, which position he filled until 1879. After leaving the Senate secretaryship, Mr. Gorham became 41. 1st st. N. W., bet, 5 and 6:30 p. m. fel2-3t* editor-in-chief of the National Republican, then the leading daily newspaper lican, then the leading daily newspaper of the Capital. His editorials attracted wide attention and he became known as an authority on public questions.

Mr. Gorham also won fame as a biographer. His life of Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War in Lincoln's Cabinet, and life of Justine Stephen J. Field were adopted in the leading colleges and public schools as text books leges and public schools as text books on biography. From early boyhood Mr. Gorham was a stanch Republican, and his party allegiance never wavered until 1896, when he voted for and became the ar-dent admirer of William J. Bryan. Defeat Disappoints.
